The Mississippi Governor's Mansion is the second oldest continuously occupied governor's residence in the United States. In 1842, Governor Tilghman Tucker and his family moved into the Jackson Mansion. Architect William Nichols designed it in the Greek Revival style. It was built for $50,000.