"Medgar Evers, the first NAACP field secretary and prominent civil rights activist and organizer, was assassinated at his home in 1963. This private home—now a national historic landmark—has been turned into a museum and restored to look as it did when the Evers family lived there. Evers is buried in Arlington Cemetery in Washington, D.C." From the United States Civil Rights Trail Website.